Cookies

Cookies are widely used on most major websites. These are small pieces of information that are stored in a browser-related file on your computer's hard drive when you use a website. Overall, cookies help us provide you with better websites, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not. This helps us analyse data about web page traffic and tailor our websites to your needs. A cookie in no way gives us access to your computer or any information about you other than the data you choose to share with us.

You can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. This may, however, prevent you from taking full advantage of our websites.

Links to other websites

Our websites may contain external links to enable you to visit other websites of interest easily. However, once you have used these links to leave our site, you should note that we do not have any control over that other website. Therefore, we cannot be responsible for the protection and privacy of any information which you provide whilst visiting such sites and such sites are not governed by this privacy statement. You should exercise caution and look at the privacy statement applicable to the website in question.

Other information we collect

We may collect and use additional information to carry out internal research on our users' demographics, interests, and behaviour, to better understand and serve you and our other online users. This information may include the URL that you just came from (whether this URL is on our site or not), which URL you next go to (whether this URL is on our site or not), what browser you are using, and your IP address.

If you post on our site, on LinkedIn or Facebook or other social media site about us or your experience with us, we may collect that information for the purposes of improving our service and the end user experience.

Access and removal of Information

You have the right to access to the personal information held about you and to ask us to correct any inaccuracy. There are some exceptions to this right, set out in the Privacy Act. If you make an access request, we will ask you to verify your identity and specify what information you require. If you are concerned about how your personal information is being handled or if you would like to make a complaint, please contact us on the details listed at www.path.co.nz/contact. If you are unhappy with our response, there are other bodies you can go to as listed on the Product Disclosure Statement. We will not keep your personal information longer than is required for the purpose which the information may be used. Out of date or inaccurate information will be automatically removed from our system.

Updates to our information practices

We reserve the right to change this policy. By continuing to use our service, including the Websites, you agree to be bound by the amended policy. You should check from time to time to see if the policy has changed.
